More information about the credit rating range and credit risk concentration for debt instruments as at reporting dates is disclosed in Note 25.1.2.

Closing balance	9,316,087	8,547,188	9,316,087	8,547,188

Significant deviations of net changes in fair value during the period for debt instruments are a consequence of the deteriorating conditions and movements in market prices respecting yields to which the Central Bank was exposed in comparative reporting periods.

These changes are the dominant reason for the deviation of the quarterly total comprehensive income of the Central Bank in the reporting periods.

25. FINANCIAL RISK MANAGEMENT (CONTUNUED)25.2. Market risk

Market risk is the risk that changes of prices on the market, such as interest rates, financial assets prices and foreign exchange rates, will affect the Central Bank's income or the value of investment in financial assets. Basic market risks, which Central Bank follows and manages, are foreign exchange risk and interest rate risk. The objective of market risk management is to manage and control market risk exposures with acceptable parameters, while optimising the return.

For the purpose of quantifying the market risks effects on the currency reserves value, the Central Bank applies the Value at Risk (VaR) concept. VaR represents a statistical measure which shows the maximum loss that can occur in foreign currency reserves portfolio due to the changes in the financial instruments prices and the foreign exchange rates, given a certain level of confidence and a particular time horizon. VaR value for market risk is calculated by analytical (parametric) method, based on the mean value of gain/loss or yield rate of observed portfolio and standard deviation of observed data. The Central Bank, when calculating VaR, applies a level of confidence of 99% and a 10-day horizon.

For calculating VaR value of foreign currency reserves portfolio of the Central Bank, all positions which are exposed to market risks in foreign currency reserves portfolio are taken into account, respectively foreign exchange risk, interest rate risk and price risk. As at 30 June 2020, the exposure of the Central Bank's foreign currency reserves (Value at Risk at a level of confidence of 99% for a 10-day horizon), including fluctuations of the prices of financial instruments and foreign exchange rates against the KM, equals to KM 93,093 thousand (31 December 2019: KM 76,418 thousand), which represents 0.71% of the total financial assets (31 December 2019: 0.61% of the total financial assets).

In thousands of KM	30 June 2020	31 December 2019
Currency risk	235	277
Interest rate risk	75,826	67,443
Risk of change in EUR prices of the monetary gold	17,032	8,698
Total VaR	93,093	76,418

The increase of VaR value was due to oscillations in changes in yields and changes in the price of monetary gold in the financial market.

25.2.1. Foreign exchange risk

Foreign exchange risk is the risk of changes in foreign exchange assets and liabilities due to the changes in foreign exchange rates. The Central Bank is exposed to foreign exchange risk through transactions in foreign currencies. Foreign exchange risk is primarily managed through reconciling currency structure of assets and liabilities of the Central Bank, as well as through setting the quantitative limits for exposure to foreign exchange risk.

The control and management of the foreign exchange risk is based on the strict adherence to the provisions of the Law on the Central Bank and the Central Bank's internal regulations.

The largest part of gross foreign currency reserves is held in EUR, and the maximum amount that can be held in convertible currencies other than EUR, must not exceed the equivalent of 50% of the total amount of the unimpaired capital and reserves of the Central Bank.

25. FINANCIAL RISK MANAGEMENT (CONTINUED)25.2. Market risk (continued)*25.2.2. Interest rate risk

Interest rate risk is the risk of changes in market value of the financial assets due to the adverse movements of interest rates. Interest rate risk is managed by determining the acceptable term duration and maturity of financial instruments in which Central Bank invests. The longer the maturity of financial instruments in which foreign currency reserves are invested, the greater the associated risk of changes in their market value is. Maximum term for investing deposits with foreign banks is one year, while maximum term of investing debt instruments with fixed income is ten years.

25.3. Liquidity risk

Liquidity risk refers to the possible difficulties in liquidating a portion of assets quickly, when it is necessary, mostly when market conditions are unfavorable or when there is no opportunity to obtain the appropriate price of the financial asset on financial market.

Liquid assets are defined as those assets whose conversion into cash causes minimal transaction costs and whose value is the closest to market value.

Considering the need of guaranteeing the KM convertibility, the daily liquidity should be provided by the maturity adjustment of the Central Bank foreign currency reserves.

The liquidity framework should match the forecasted potential liquidity needs with identified liquid instruments. The liquidity of each financial instrument eligible for investment must be duly considered before the investment in the instrument is made.

26. FAIR VALUE MEASUREMENT OF FINANCIAL ASSETS AND FINANCIAL LIABILITIES

Fair value is the price that would be received to sell an asset or paid to transfer a liability in an orderly transaction between market participants at the measurement date, regardless of whether that price is directly observable or estimated using another valuation technique. In estimating the fair value of an asset or liability, the Central Bank takes into account the characteristics of the asset or liability which market participants would take into account when pricing the asset or liability at the measurement date.

The estimated fair values of the Central Bank's financial assets and financial liabilities have been determined using available market information, where it exists, and appropriate valuation methodologies.

In addition, for financial reporting purposes, fair value measurements are categorised into Level 1, 2 or 3 based on the degree to which the inputs to the fair value measurements are observable and the significance of the inputs to the fair value measurement in its entirety, which are described as follows:

- Level 1 inputs are quoted prices (unadjusted) in active markets for identical assets or liabilities that the Central Bank can access at the measurement date;
- Level 2 inputs are inputs, other than quoted prices included in Level 1, that are observable for the asset or liability, either directly or indirectly; and
- Level 3 inputs are unobservable inputs for the asset or liability.
